

Abstract

A digital camera equipped with surveillance and burglarproof functions includes a host and a picture taking device that are separable. The host may be placed in a hidden location in a house. The picture taking device may be used to take pictures for surveillance purpose. The picture taking device and the host may also be coupled to become one body to function as a digital camera for taking pictures directly. The picture taking is performed one by one in a static fashion to produce clear images.

10